

The Hundred-Mile-An-Hour Dog

It took me a while to find Streaker. She was nesting under my duvet. She has stuffed the bottom of my bed with a jumper, two pairs of pants, a sock, a football boot, half a packet of crisps and an old apple core. Thank you, Streaker! I snapped the lead on to her collar and off we went.

You've never seen Streaker being walked, have you? It's not a walk at all. It's more like a series of gigantic jerks. We crashed into three lamp-posts, visited four gardens that we weren't supposed to, almost tunnelled beneath a parked car in search of a very tasty week-old chip packet and finally used an astonished lady with a shopping bag on wheels as a kind of mini-roundabout.

Text copyright © 1996 by Jeremy Strong; illustrations copyright © 1996 by Nick Sharratt

The Hundred-Mile-An-Hour Dog

Quick Questions

1. What was Streaker searching for beneath the parked car?

2. What other word could be used to describe the lady instead of 'astonished'?

3. Why do you think it says that they used the lady as kind of a mini-roundabout?

4. How does this section of the story start?

- Trevor takes Streaker for a walk.
- Trevor looks for Streaker.
- Trevor hides under the duvet.

Text copyright © 1996 by Jeremy Strong; illustrations copyright © 1996 by Nick Sharratt

The Hundred-Mile-An-Hour Dog

Answers

1. What was Streaker searching for beneath the parked car?

Streaker was searching for a very tasty week-old chip packet beneath the parked car.

2. What other word could be used to describe the lady instead of 'astonished'?

Answers might include: shocked; startled; surprised; bewildered.

3. Why do you think it says that they used the lady as kind of a mini-roundabout?

Accept any sensible answer, such as: Trevor and Streaker probably circled around the lady like cars circle around a mini-roundabout.

4. How does this section of the story start?

- Trevor takes Streaker for a walk.
- Trevor looks for Streaker.
- Trevor hides under the duvet.